

Alekseev Boris - Deputy Director for Science in National Medical Research Center of Radiology in Moscow

Boris Alekseev, MD, Professor, Deputy Director for science in National Medical Research Center of Radiology in Moscow, Russian Federation. His main interests are focused on oncology and urology. He has a huge experience in international clinical trials, focused on oncologic urology, he has been dedicated the principle investigator of more than 50 clinical trials on prostate, kidney and bladder cancer. An experience surgeon with ability to perform all kind of high-technological, extended, combined, plastic and function-preserving operations in patients with prostate, bladder, kidney, adrenal gland, testicular cancer. He is the author of more than 500 publications in Russian and English literature. Professor Alekseev has a great experience of participation in local and international conferences as a perfect speaker and moderator of different scientific topics. He is a scientific secretary of Russian Society of Oncourology), a member of the European Association of Urology, a member of Scientific Council of the International Agency for Research on Cancer, a head of Department of Oncology in Moscow Postgraduate Medical Institute.